

Welcome To Arkham!

All of the parts of Arkham Horror have specific functions. As you remove items from the box, take time to inspect and to become familiar with them. A list of parts occurs below.

The rules, two Arkham Gazettes, two "About Your Investigator" folders, the money sheets, and the Roll of Honor are collated but unbound. Break the money sheets apart and sort the bills by denomination. There are $1, $5, and $10 bills.

The rules folder is presented in order-of-play sequence. The investigator sheets also contain rules information: there the data is presented by topic and key phrase.

To use the game board, bend it slightly backward along the creases so that it lays flatter when open. The UV coating is fairly rugged, and you can use tape to fasten down the board. Remember to remove any tape by pulling toward the edge of the board.

The 50 one-inch-square counters are printed on both sides. One side shows an outline or picture of a monster; the other side gives more detailed information about it. Keep track of which monsters have moved by flipping over each counter after moving it. Page 4 of the rules folder explains the counter information. Put the doom factor counter on the game board doom track.

Separate the investigator cards. The red clips mark the changes in investigator sanity and strength points — one for each side of each card. For long-term wear, laminate the cards or use coin markers.

Separate the 99 game cards, and sort them by the messages on their backs. Throw away the card edging.

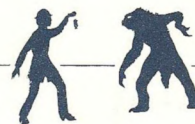

If you play multiple investigators, notice that each of the plastic pawns matches the colored pawn outline on one of the investigator cards, a reminder of which pawn represents what investigator.

The diagram on the other side of this page shows the game track and town locations.

Errata for ARKHAM HORROR

SKILL CARDS: the skill cards backs are colored different shades of orange, allowing players better chances to select certain skills. Randomize the process by shuffling the skill cards and dealing them out.

MONEY: the parts list errs. There are 32 $1 bills and 10 $10 bills, as supplied in the game.

COUNTERS: counters other than black were expected to color-match with one of the 8 Other Worlds, a doomed impulse so far as the migo and the dhole are concerned. These murky purple and black counters go with Yuggoth. The lighter purple and white byakhee and star spawn go with the Great Hall of Celeano.

A second purple star-spawn matches no Other World. You might play this counter as belonging to the City of the Great Race, since that Other World is rather shorted in corresponding counters. Adopt any consistent scheme.

On the image side of the R'lyeh star spawn, the movement code is out of place: it states correctly that the counter turns right at intersections and moves 4.

The image side of one shoggoth mysteriously sports a second black circle. That represents indigestion: ignore it.

COLLATION: the other folders should have been collated inside the Welcome To Arkham folder.

RULES: if all gates may be on the board or in trophy stacks, continue to play and ignore a result which calls for a new gate and monster to appear. Do not advance the doom factor because of such a result: 16 gate cards make an adequate challenge.

If all monsters are on the board or in trophy stacks, ignore a result calling for a monster to appear.

"About Your Investigator," page 3, Origination Classes: black and white monsters, if in a gated location when that gate is destroyed, are of course removed from play and placed in the destroyer's trophy stack.

(Selected like this fixed in PnP-version, also fixed movement on back of 2 fast deep ones)

Arkham Horror, Rule Fixes and Changes, 20.3.91 Geoffrey Phipps

Flying Monsters This rule applies to all flying monsters EXCEPT for the Hound of Tindalos. Flying monsters can only see investigators that are on the sidewalk. If there are no investigators on the sidewalk, then a flying monster moves like a non-flying monster. Its turn mode (left or right) for that mythos phase is decided by a die roll. An odd number means left-turning mode, an even number means right-turning mode. Flying monsters may never attack an investigator in a location.

The Hound of Tindalos The Hound can see investigators in buildings. It must move towards and attack the closest investigator in a building. If there are no investigators in buildings, then it chases (but does not attack) the closest investigator on the sidewalk. Otherwise it moves randomly in the same fashion as other targetless flying monsters.

Founder's Rock If a 7 is rolled on the gate location table then one monster appears on each gate, even if Founder's Rock has been closed by an Eldar sign.

The Silver Key This may be used to leave the Dreamlands, in which case it is left in the Dreamlands. The owner may go back there and retrieve it by entering the Dreamlands through a normal gate, or by suffering an appropriate location encounter.

Winning The game is won by the player with the most victory points. At the end of the game, each dead monster is worth its strength in victory points, each destroyed gate is worth twice its strength in victory points.

Migos If you kill a Migo and it is owed to the Dagon Mission because of charity, then the Mission gets the Migo's item.

Player Order Untested Rotate the position of First Player. If you were the first human player during the last game turn, then the player on your left will be first player in this game turn.

Carrying Capacity Untested Characters have a limited carrying capacity. For each spell in excess of one that a investigator has, reduce that investigator's maximum sanity by one. For each item in excess of one that a investigator has, reduce that investigator's maximum strength by one.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal blue or grey ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. On the right side, there is a dark, textured vertical strip, possibly representing a book binding or a folder edge. The paper appears slightly aged or off-white.
